T/O &amp; E OF THE HUMANIAN 11TH TK BRIG

Introduction

25X1

A. LINE ORGANIZATION OF THE 11TH TK BRIG (See Annex A)

25X1

[redacted] the 11th Tk Brig consisted of three medium tank battalions, an infantry battalion, a reconnaissance company, an armored vehicle repair shop, and one each of signal, chemical, and engineer platoons, as well as the headquarters staff sections (see section B).

1. Medium Tank Battalions (See Annex C)

Each of the three medium tank battalions (prior to the deactivation of the 3d Tk Bn in September or October 1952) had approximately 24 officers and 240 EM. However, none had any organic tanks, SP's or vehicles. [redacted] units which needed armored vehicles for training or for problems drew them from a consolidated brigade pool. [redacted] this was because of the limited number of armored vehicles available.

25X1

2. Infantry Battalion (See Annex D)

[redacted] this unit had no vehicles. [redacted]

25X1

3. Reconnaissance Company

[redacted] no specific information on the organization of this unit [redacted]

25X1

4. Signal Platoon

[redacted] this unit installed and maintained field telephones used in the unit caserne. [redacted] no radio equipment in the brigade with the exception of the 9-RS tank radio in the T-34 tanks. [redacted] the SP's [redacted]

5. Chemical Defense Platoon

[redacted] its mission was to decontaminate equipment. It maintained a small supply point for gas capes and masks. This unit gave chemical defense instruction, and [redacted] approximately two hours a week under this platoon's direction. The instruction was always of a defensive nature.

25X1

25X1

6. Engineer Platoon

[redacted] it probably did the major repairs, building, ditch digging, etc. that might be needed.

25X1

25X1

7. Armored Vehicle Repair Shop

This unit had three trailers that were fitted out with lathes and tools. [redacted] in time of war an armored tractor (which [redacted] was a T-34 tank minus the turret of which the brigade had three) would recover a knocked-out tank and bring it back to one of the three mobile repair trailer shops for repair. [redacted] these work shops constituted what was known as Grade I armored repair shop (atelierul de Gradul I). [redacted] they would be assigned to all independent armored units regardless of size.
